

🇬🇧 SSSSB Story 077a: Finish Today? Or Wait until Tomorrow? [5-12 years]

♥ Do the important things today with love and care

There was once a 7-year-old child who sat by his desk, thinking deeply: “I have so many things to do... homework, helping at home, caring for my little sister, and also playing a little. What should I do first?”

He remembered his teacher's gentle question: “Will you finish everything today, or will you leave some things for tomorrow?”

The child wondered and wondered. Just then, he looked out of the window. There he saw a mother bird feeding her babies in the nest. She was busy, yet peaceful, giving them food at the right time.

The child smiled and thought: “The bird is teaching me something... I should do the present and urgent things first, just like she feeds her babies when they need it most.”

So he decided: “I will finish the important things today — homework, helping at home, caring for my sister. And the things that are not urgent, I can leave for tomorrow.”

He thanked the bird in his heart and felt light and happy.

Question: Do you finish your homework today? Or you leave some things for tomorrow?

Heart-Work: Try finishing the most important things first today. Notice how it makes you feel inside — lighter, happier, and more peaceful.
