

Girl A and Girl B were best friends who loved helping in the school garden. Every day after class, they watered the plants and pulled out weeds. The flowers bloomed brightly, and the vegetable grew strong because of their care.

One afternoon, while watering the roses, they began talking about their dreams.

Girl A said excitedly: "When I grow up, I want to have a big garden! I'll grow flowers, vegetables, and fruit, and sell them to people. With the money I earn, I'll buy toys and games."

Girl B clapped her hands: "That's wonderful! I'll open a toy shop, and you can buy games from me. I'll buy vegetables from you!"

But then Girl A frowned playfully: "No, I'll open the toy shop, and you can grow the vegetables!"

The girls started arguing. Finally, they decided to ask their SSSSB Guru for advice.

The Guru listened kindly and said, "You both have wonderful dreams! But instead of arguing, why don't you work together? Start by taking care of the school garden together. You can learn tips from the school gardener. When you help each other, your dreams will grow stronger – just like these plants!"

The girls smiled, realizing the Guru was right. From that day, they worked together side by side, watering, planting, and sharing tasks. They laughed, played, and encouraged each other. Soon the school garden became the pride of everyone – full of bright flowers, healthy vegetable, and happy teamwork.

Question: How did you like the story? What's your favorite flower, vegetable, or fruit?

Heart-Work: Practice working together with friends. After some time, share your experience on how you felt. [example: you can keep classroom clean, pick up garbage from school ground and put in garbage bins etc]