

Dipak and Moise were sitting on a tree trunk, watching the sun slowly set behind the mountains.

“I am thinking about working abroad one day,” said Moise. “That way I can earn money and help my parents.”

Dipak nodded. “That is a noble thought. But life abroad is not always as wonderful as it seems.”

“What do you mean?” asked Moise.

“My brother works in Qatar, my sister in South Korea, and my cousin in Japan. To leave country, they had to borrow a lot of money. My family even sold part of our land. Some of those debts have still to be paid.

But what worries me even more is how they have changed. My brother doesn't value our country anymore. My sister sometimes acts as if she is better than others. And my cousin speaks almost only English now, even with our grandparents, who hardly understand it.”

Moise became quiet. “So what are you going to do?” he asked.

“I am staying in the contry.” replied Dipak. “I want to help my family, my village, and my country. I want to build something here.”

“But how do you think that way?” asks Moise

“I learned it in the SSSSB classes from my Gurus.”,

“The SSSSB classes are too far from where I live.”, Moise said.

“No problem,” laughed Dipak. “You can join online via Zoom. Come to my house on Saturday.”

The two boys smiled.

Many years later, they were still in the homecountry. Together they started a small business. Through hard work, honesty, and seva, it grew into three successful companies. Today, many young people work there, helping to build a brighter future for the country.

Question and Heart-Work : Would you choose to stay in country or go abroad?
