

After class, three students were sitting together.

Student 1 said sadly: If my family were rich, I could do sewa. Without money, I can't do sewa. Why didn't God make my family rich? Then I could help many people. Now I can do nothing, because no one will take me seriously.

Student 2 replied: I feel the same. My family is not famous or powerful. No one is a leader, athlete, actor or minister. If we had an important position, we could do a lot of sewa. Now no one will take us seriously.

Both the students looked at Student 3 and asked: What about you?, they asked.

Student 3 smiled gently. Friends, Sewa does not begin with money, position, or fame - it begins in the heart. God has given something to everyone.

Student 1 and 2 listened quietly.

Student 3 continued: Every small action done with love can be sewa – offering water to someone with kindness, listening patiently, helping a struggling student, forgiving someone who hurt us, speaking kindly, or praying for someone's well-being.

God sees the intention behind every action. Maybe nobody will know what we have done. But, When we help with a pure heart, God knows.

Student 1 thought for a moment and, said: Oh!, then, I don't have to wait to do sewa.

Student 2 smiled and replied : Let's start today. A small act done with great love is never small in the eyes of God.

Student 3 nodded: We do not have to become great before we can serve. Through loving service, we discover the greatness that is already within us.

From that day on, they began looking for opportunities to serve. Slowly they discovered that opportunities for sewa were everywhere: at home, at school, and in their community.

Question: What sewa do you do in your daily life?

Heart-Work: Choose one act of sewa that you can do everyday this week. In the next class you can share -What sewa did you do? How did it make you feel? How did it help someone else?
