

Once upon a time, there were two boys from grade 8.

Student A: "Do you think we could make an SSSSB story?"

Student B: "No way, that's impossible. We've only been in SSSSB for one year, and making stories isn't easy. Only really talented people can do that after years of practice. Maybe in a few years, we could try..."

By coincidence, two girls from grade 3 walked by.

Girl 1: "We've been in the SSSSB class for four weeks now. Do you think we could make an SSSSB story ourselves?"

Girl 2: "Yes, of course, why not? Let's just start and do our best."

The boys overheard how brave and confident the little girls were, and felt a bit ashamed.

Girl 1: "Hey, those are two boys from grade 8! We could ask them for advice about how to make a story."

The boys thought: "Oh no... if they ask us something, we won't have an answer. Then we'll look foolish."

Girl 2: "Let's first try it ourselves. If it really doesn't work, we can always ask the older students for advice."

The boys sighed in relief and thought:

"Today the grade 3 students gave us an example of courage and self-confidence."

The girls' story

Girl 1 began with a story: "Once upon a time there was a grandfather and a grandmother. Because of their circumstances, they had never been able to go to school."

Girl 2 continued: "That's why they could hardly read and write."

Girl 1: "But they had grandchildren who wanted their dear grandparents to still learn to read, write, and do arithmetic."

Girl 2: "Shall we now ask the students from the SSSSB class to continue the story?"

Girl 1: "Good idea! I'll ask now: 'Sairam, all SSSSB students, would you like to finish this story?'"

Girl 2: "And could you please add both fun and meaningful things, so that everyone who hears the story not only enjoys it but also takes away a beautiful message?"

Questions and Heart-work: Continue story and finish it with a good message and also try to make it funny. You may also invent the beginning of a new story and finish it together with a group of classmates from the SSSSB class. You may also create an SSSSB story on your own.
