

🇬🇧 SSSSB Story 033a: Wealth, Health and Character [5-12 years]

Once upon a time, there were three girls. Their names were a bit special: Wealth, Health, and Character. One sunny day, they were sitting under a tree in a beautiful garden, chatting together.

Wealth said: "My parents named me Wealth because they think money is the most important thing." The other two girls shook their heads: "No, that's not true."

Then Health said: "My parents believe health is more important. That's why my name is Health." The other girls shook their heads again: "No, we think differently."

Then Character said: "My parents say that if you have a good heart and are honest, everything will be fine. That's why my name is Character." But the others still said: "Hmm, we're not sure..."

They started to get a little upset. But fortunately, they came up with a good idea: "Let's go ask our Guru SSSSB!"

Their Guru SSSSB was a kind and wise teacher. She told beautiful stories and shared advice she had learned through practice and love.

When the girls asked her what was most important — Wealth, Health, or Character — the Guru replied:

"If you have money but are mean or dishonest, you will misuse your money." The girls nodded.

"If you are healthy but do bad things, your health won't be of much use." They nodded again.

"But if you have good character — if you are kind, honest, and courageous — you will take good care of your health and use your money wisely." The girls nodded joyfully.

Question and Heart-Work: What do you think is the most important – share from your experience.